

Cannon Hall's Cottage Garden

... A sensory experience for everyone

Cannon Hall's historic cottage garden has been restored using plants that would have been available in the 1760s, when it was originally designed. Now, the garden has been made accessible to visitors for the first time. It is intended to provide a peaceful, sensory space for everyone to enjoy.

The garden is available for use by schools and community groups to experience gardening activities in a stimulating environment. For schools, a range of activities linked to the National Curriculum (covering history, geography, science and design & technology) can be chosen to make up a half or full day visit. These activities can be adapted for individual groups. Please call us to discuss your visit.

At weekends and in school holidays the garden provides an additional seating area for the Victorian Kitchen Tearooms.

Please Note:

When visiting the garden please do not pick the fruit – it is grown for the benefit of the children and other groups who use this space for educational purposes. Thank you.

This project has been funded by Landfill Tax credit funding from the Waste Recycling Group plc, administered by WREN, The Friends of Cannon Hall Museum, Park & Gardens and the Rotary Club of Barnsley.
